

Salmonella Associated with Foods with Hydrolyzed Vegetable Protein

- Hydrolyzed vegetable protein (HVP) is a flavor enhancer used in processed foods.
- HVP manufactured by Basic Food Flavors has been recalled because of Salmonella. See the consumer alert.
- No illnesses have been reported.
- HVP is used in a wide variety of food products. Only products made with HVP from Basic Food Flavors are being recalled. Browse and search the list of recalled products.

For updates on these recalls, visit FoodSafety.gov.